is considered that the duty of the Magistrate to receive whatever evidence the accused may be able to produce in his defence is left in doubt by the Bill as drafted it-will doubtless be amended. The intention evidently is that the Magistrate should inself in a position to report upon it. On correspondent says it is the Magistrate's duty to take down the evidence, but that he cannot weigh it or come to any decision as to whether the defence is good or not. But by section 11 of the Bill it is directed that the fractory spirit. The Jiji adds, further, that Mag istrate shall "seend to the Governor the depositions and other evidence in the case together with such report thereon as be thinks fit." The intention is clearly, we think, that the Magistrate shall weigh the evidence and come to a decision on the marits Rules of H.B.M. Supreme and other Courts of the case. The duty of the Magistrate this respect was clearly laid down in the case of Leung Arc, decided in the Supreme Court on the 14th June, 1887. that case the Magistrate refused to hea evidence for the defence, and on this ground the Court ordered the discharge of the prisoner. "It appears," the Court says, in more energetic, in spite of the great heat, or "Lex's " opinion as to the right of the Ma-

its judgment, "that there were eight witnesses in attendance and tendered on behalf of the prisoner, and whether their evidence was worth anything or nothing, in our judgment they should have been examined." As to gistrate to take evidence of an alibi, we note Colquboun to be one of the Eurmo-China that in the judgment in Laung Apr's case the Court quotes and adopts the following passage from a judgment by the late Mr. Justice Snowden in a similar case:-- "In the depositions there was no statement the accused were called on to plead. "Forward," in the Regimental News, writes -I cannot help noticing how little interest is taken in the playing of the Band and Pipers at the Public Gardens. The contrast between this place and Ceylon is very marked in this respect. In Colombo, when the Band played on the Galle Face, everyone attended, from the Governor downwards. Indeed the crowd was so great, both of Europeans and Natives, that a space had to be railed off for the Band. The Public Gardens here are far before the Galle Face as a place of resort, which makes it all the more remarkable. Is it that the people of Ceylon are that—the people of Hongkong are less musical than the people of Covion? I am told that the Band of the last Regiment always performed in the Gardens on Sunday, but such is against our

This concluded the case for the plaintiff. Mr. Hastings, in opening the case for the defendant said plaintiff claimed that he was the promoter of the Company, but he neither performed the duties nor accepted the responsibilities of a promoter. From an occasional correspondent in Chemulpo the 4th March. He told me be had given orders plied for by him would be allotted. If Mr Sampson told his clients that it was without any authority. There was one case in which one man applied for a very large number of shares and I told Mr. Sampson he could not have al those. I have gone through the list of shareholders and I find that 1,671 shares were allotted on applications made through Mr. Sampson. One per cent. on the amount of those shares amounts to 8417, which I have paid into Court. Mr. Sampson sent in his account on the 31st March. I did not give Mr. Sampson 4,000 shares N. Co.'s steamer Newasa to tow her to Bombay. to place. My idea was first of all to get applicants privately for 4,000 shares and then advertise the other 2,000 in the newspapers, but this was not found necessary. I considered the account sent in by Mr. Sampson as unreasonable. C. oss examined by Mr. Webber-I sugaged Mr. Sampson as my assistant in canvassing for sistant. I kept Mr. Sampson posted from time to time as to any applicant: I had myself and he kept a complete list. At the time this list was completed by Mr. Sampson, it is not a facthat 6,000 shares only had been applied for. heard it reported that Mr. Sampson had told hi clients that they would have as many shares allotted as they applied for. I did not speak t

Mr. Samps n about this. This concluded the case for the defence. Mr. Hasting said the first point to decide was n what character the plaintiff claimed. He submitted he could not claim as a promoter. A promoter was a person who was a trustee of the Company and who was responsible for every statement made in the prospectus. but Mr. Sampson took no responsibility whatever. If the prospectus had turned out to be a tissue of falsehoods, Mr. Sampson would have been in no way liable. Mr. Sampson was simply an assistant to Mr. Fenwick in canvassing for applicants for shares. It was true that Mr. Samps n rendered certain services and the question was what was fair, reasonable and just remuneration for those services. Mr. Webber in his opening speech informed the Court that he intended to prove what the custom in Hongkong This heroic and noble-minded priest of the was, and it was for his Lordship to say whether Roman Catholic Church voluntarily became such custom had been proved. expressed by our Correspondents. COMPANY FLOATING.

SIR.—I see it was stated on behalf of the plaintiff in the case heard vesterday that the Company was floated "without any advertise ment or pulling in the nowspapers." This seems to be the new idea in forming Companies and it cannot be said but that some of these new ventures much needed puffing. The fact is that s good sound concern need not fear, but has much to gain by publicity, and that all that is required is an advert sement of the prospectus for a short time. Only a doubtful concern wants personal canvassing, and there certainly was no need of it in regard to Mr. Fenwick's Company. An advertisement in the papers would have brought a much larger number of applications, and, what is of the greatest importance to such a business, a wider dis-tribution for the shares. That would not have cost. I presume, more than $100 or so for advertising in both English and Chinese, where as the plaintiff in the recent case wanted half a dollar a share and another broker said that he would not have done the work under $3,000. It seems to me that this hole and corner way of getting up a public concern is the very werst for the companies, nor is it fair to the nublic. who should be treated all alike. It gives an advantage to those whose offices happen to be in the central part of the Queen's Road while we who are engaged all day at the east or west ends of the town often do not hear of a new scheme till it is too late. In the case of Messrs. Fenwick's Company it did not matter to me personally as I got the chance of some shares before the Company was floated, although I am unacquainted with either Mr. Feawick or the plaintiff broker who mode of world lighting. THE WORLD LIGHTED AND WARMED BY ELECTRICITY.

The growing use of electricity for light and motion has waked up the old sleeping theory that our sun is not a hot mass of tire, but is only an immense body capable of acting, upon some fluid of Dunkirk, N. Y. He merits praise for stating experience told me a few days ago that if he were There had | Sky student have always felt the weight of sun was keeping p for million of years a fire that could warmall planets 100,000,000 miles away. When the Illinois or Dakota farmer remembers how year he must stand to an anthracite stove in order to secure a summer-like temperature for his physical nature, it becomes difficult for him to imagine what kind of a stove that must be which make torrid sones on planets located hundreds of millions of miles away from > been to the astronomer tasks about which the Dr. Rogers does not bring peace to the culated to make sceptics and agnostics of all > to give the fire such a radiating power have

Between the sun and the earth there are about ninety-five millions of miles of solid coldness. The Italian naturalist Vecci declares the averbelow zero. After making all due allowance substantial-fact-would-remain-that-the realmbetween earth and sun is chilly even at noonday. Wonderful heat must that be which can pass through such an awful ice-box and come out bot on the further side of the box! Does the sun send any heat through this expanse of cold Cutting down trees is an operation that often space? If not, therefore is the san no fire as scorobing which made the desert of Sahara.

Dr. Rogers claims that electricity darts its waves across the abves and becomes luminous and warm the instant it meets the resistance add heat. Thus the in becomes an "electric Bedford Square, London, W. C., England: [499] plant," and each planet is a charcoal stick withn easy reach of the central dynamo.

To this theory the lecturer adds a factor which s new, and, if true, is valuable. In order to save those electric currents or rays intact that they may not break out into light in those spaces where no planet exists, they must meet with no obstacle, and therefore a vacuum is declared to exist in all the interstellar spaces. This vacuum is assumed, and this is the more easily done because there is no one to dispute the claim. Vecci. even, not having been there with his long thermometer. If a vacuum would prevent the elect ic force from being spent on the way, then let us a l consent to the existence of that gulf of nothingness.

But up comes this question :-- Does electricity itself love to travel through a vacuum? A recent experiment shows that that is just the condition of things that peculiar force highly enjoys; for a current being passed through a long glass tube. through the centre of which tube a resisting medium was drawn, that medium became mere luminous as rapidly as the air was pumped out; that s, the lightning ran the faster where there was no air. The less air the better travelling. Thus stop by stop this "dventurous lecturer builds up his hypothesis that our daylight and our summer time are the results of an electric system differing from the Brush and Edison patents only in its enormous size. What develops the electricity that is thus assumed to issue from the sun? That is a difficult question, but it seems less difficult than the task of keeping up that central fire. There is a marvellous band of electricity flowing around our planet from east to west, across which band the needle settles, pointing north and south. The sun, being about a million miles in diameter, may create by its motion or by some means an an ocean of this force which sends forth its But we must not expect Dr. Rogers to know all the particulars which pertain to his new is open to the objection that those rays escaping from the central dynamo would find a resistance in the medium around the sun itself, a. d would not be able to penetrate to the vacuum for their foreign light. Perh ps the sun's atmosphere was burned out millions of years ago, and perhaps the planetary atmospheres are the first ones touched by the

Under this theory it would seem that the sun himself ought not to be visible to us as a central orb. We ought to be surrounded by only a luminous air: for why should we see a dark object 95,000,000 of u ilos away from the light? Arguments for and against ought now to spring up rapidly. The uses of electricity are opening up a new field of inquiry, and it must be confessed that Dr Rogers in his Chantauqua papers has made a fair and clear opening to an interesting debate. Meanwhile the sun is doing a noble bus ness either as a dynamo or as a gigantic stove.—Chicago Journal.

NAVAL NOTES

A correspondent of the Globe writes:—In the Daily Telegraph of yesterday appeared a most interesting contribution on the Jussian Navy from a correspondent who appears to know thoroughly well what he is talking about, but prefers to remain anonymous. As he says, "the silent, resolute, business like method in which it ussia has gone to work to build up a thoroughly efficient mayy with the strictest regard for economy" is well worthy our attention. She has carried out, or will carry out, her programme of naval construction especially with careful regard to the work each class of visce's will have to do when the inevitable war comes. Thus, in the Black Sea she is providing fir t-class ironelads to give the coup de grace to Turkey, some day, and in the Baltic she is fortifying herself with to at defence monitors, and laying up a store of clippers, more or less powerfully armed, to harry our mercantile marine—also some day. She is, be ides these pre arations for naval war, constructing torpeloboats with "marvellous rapidity and secrescy." She has, we are told, made ample provision for the defence of her coasts, and has built up a navy which practically puts her in possession of Turkey, and enables her to prove extremely troublesome to this country whenever the two nations happen to go to war.' This may be all very true and we ought to pian change his skin so soon? Have the corrupt practices of all Russian Government departments been so corrected that even two-thirds of the money ordered to be applied to public purposes ever is so applied? I doubt it. I was in Russia, under exceptionally favourable cirsumstan es for observation. It years ago, and the things I was then told by Englishmen of the highest posit on in Petersb rg were sufficiently star ling. The Peter the Great, the bugbear that Sir E. Reed tried to terrify Europe with. was inspected by the then Czar, poor fellow, and declared to be ready for sea when she had no engines in her, and a fire of shavings was lighted at the bottom of her funnel to make smoke to advice to all with whom he comes across is spoken | delude him. The explosion was the result of carelessness on the part of one of the engineers, who forgot to open a valve. Any accident that occurs in our navy, however distant may be the scene of it, is pretty sure to find its way into every English newspaper, and, by consequence, into a good many foreign ones. The authorities are still at their wits end to know how to catch stokers. In vain is the net spread in the sight of the unemployed; the birds are too wily to be caught. A commander of

I do not see any reason why we should not have both. If the Hero does go to the Mediterranean, something will have to be done to improve the ventilation in her donamo and furret tureing engine rooms. The heat is intense there, even in England, and would be unbearable should she chance-to find herself : t Suakie, which is now included in the Med terranean station. According to the Naples correspondent of the Daily News, some discoveries of great importance to archmologists have just been made at Pompeii, on the site of the supposed Greek temple in the triangular forum. Excavations were being carried out there in the presence of Herr von Duhn professor of archeology, at Meidelberg, and a party of students. The vases and other objects found prove that the so-called Temple of Hercules, hitherto supposed to belong to the Greek period, 600 B.C., is of much later sults of the discoveries will first be published in the Italian archaeological journals.

According to the Vienns correspondent of the Daily News, the Emperor of Austria has now efinitely determined what is to be done with he Castle of Meyerling, which the Crown Prince Rudolph bequeathed to his little daughter Eli aboth. The Emperor has purchased it of her custoes, and has decided that the Castle itself to become a convent of Carmellite Nuns, the rder which has severer rules than, any other is natria. The more dary chamber is to be turned ito a chapel, where funeral services are to be eld on certain anniversaries; the smaller buildigs are to be transformed into almshouses and rphanages for the poor of the neighbourhood Vienna. The necessary alterations will be Miningegun immediately, so that the new occupants hay enter into possession in the autumn.

CHAPTER XXXII. THE FLIGHT OF EROS. The funeral of Mrs. Cusworth was over

The blinds were drawn up at last. When the service at the grave was concluded. Philip and Salome returned to their home, that may be called home from which the elements that go to make up home-trust, sym-- pathy, pity, forgiveness-have fled.

The sun streamed in at the windows, broke in in human relations of which Philip had never with a rude impatience, as the blinds mounted, and revelled on the floors again, and reflected it. And now the wrong done to the mother reacted, self in glass and gilding and china, brought out revenged itself on her child. Procrustes had a bed on which he tied travellors, and if their length exceeded that of the hed he cut off their extremities: but if they were shorter, he had them stretched to equal it. Philip had his iron bed of principle, on which he extended himself, and to this he would fit his poor, tender, suffering wife.

As he and Salome returned together from the funeral they hardly spoke to each other on the that she was work out. He had withdrawn his way.
